

To the JJCF Board,

Thanks to the generosity of the Jessica Jennifer Cohen Foundation, I was able to spend this past summer interning at Better Block, an urban design non-profit based in Dallas, Texas. I want to thank the JJCF board, as the support from the JJCF is what allowed me to take this life-changing opportunity. Among the many things I learned this summer, I learned to be confident in my work, but also to always try something, even if I think I may not be good at it. I experienced incredible personal growth over my time at Better Block, and the work I did this summer changed my worldview for the better. I was able to see how I could use design to improve the lives of people, and this is something that I will take to heart in my last year in school and beyond. Thank you.
